

RUSHING WORK AT FAIR GROUNDS

Exhibitors Making Tasteful and Effective Use of New Buildings.

DUST NUISANCE ABATED

Roads Have Been Oiled and Boundaries of Grounds Enlarged.

These are busy days and nights as well for the directors of the Virginia State Fair Association. There are a multitude of details to be attended to, if everything is to be in readiness for the opening of the biggest show in Virginia on Monday, October 3. Much business came before the executive committee at its meeting yesterday afternoon, and there will be a meeting of the full board of directors to-night for discussion and decision on many important matters.

Special attention is being given to finishing the big exhibition building, which will be used for the first time at this fair. There is a desire to have a uniformity of design in the exhibition booths, so that the immense floor will make an impressive picture, with an artistic and effective arrangement of exhibits. All the exhibitors are experienced business men, well versed in attractive publicity, and there is no doubt that the exhibition space will be well utilized and that visitors will be attracted by the magnificent exhibition hall.

Boundaries Extended.

Work is being rushed in all parts of the fair grounds. The ten acres added since the fair of last year will be utilized to make this fair more spectacular in its arrangement. The extension and widening of the roads will afford plenty of room for the crowds to move about freely, without crushing and confusion, and the oiling of the roads, which have been rolled to a hard, smooth surface, will prevent the annoyance of clouds of dust. Fifty carloads of oil have been used in road building, and 35,000 gallons of oil have been put on the roads and walks.

Director Spillman has ordered the Hermitage Road from a point near Broad Street out to the fair grounds gate, a distance of nearly 4,000 feet, and those who drive or motor to the fair will have a much more comfortable trip than heretofore.

All Extra Space Taken.

The building of extra pens and stalls in the live stock department was no mistake, as the increased number of entries has taken up all this extra space. When the decision was made to devote an entire building to the woman's department this year, management foresaw that the work was expected, and a computation of the exhibits and to the reception and entertainment of the thousands whom Richmond will welcome during the fair.

Crusikbank-Kunes.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Emporia, Va., September 21.—A wedding of great interest to hosts of friends took place at the Emporia Hotel last night, when Miss Mabel Kunes became the bride of S. H. Crusikbank, the ceremony being performed by Rev. G. Davis, of the Methodist Church. The wedding was celebrated at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kunes, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. Both parties are very prominent and popular in this section, the groom being the cashier of the First National Bank of this place. After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Crusikbank left by automobile for Richmond, where they will be taken to their home by train for a visit to several Northern cities. They are expected to return to Emporia in about a week's time.

CHIEF WERNER REPORTED

Was Riding in Automobile Without Lights.

With Chief of Police Werner as his guest, W. F. Forbes was reported last night by Bicycle Policemen Krenzel and Samuels on a charge of failing to have rear lights on his motor car. The police hailed Mr. Forbes and informed him of his lack of lamps or rather lighted lamps. Beside him sat the Chief of Police, who was ignorant of the fact that he was proceeding under a violation of the ordinance which he himself has so earnestly upheld. But it is not a penitentiary, or even a jail, offense, and besides the chief was not running the car, so the law cannot hold him responsible for the going out of the lights. But it was a strange irony of fate, which placed the two officers on the street for the special purpose of reporting automobiles which violated the city ordinances governing their regulation.

Collector Samuels has also reported M. L. Massie, of 1007 West Grace Street, on a charge of speeding.

ACADEMY OPENS IN DEAN'S ABSENCE

Large Enrollment of Students on First Day of Term.

Opening exercises of Richmond Academy were held yesterday in the school assembly room with the largest number of students present in the history of the institution. One hundred and thirty-five boys have already been enrolled, and it is expected that more will come in later.

In the absence of Professor W. I. Prince, the dean of the Academy, the opening was presided over by Acting Dean Frank Z. Brown. Professor Prince is ill with fever. In Princess Anne county, and of course could not be present. The reports from his bedside indicate that he will be up and ready for work in a few weeks.

Acting Dean Brown delivered an address of welcome to the new scholars on behalf of the faculty, declaring that the teachers and trustees were ready and willing to do all that they could to help the pupils in their work. T. H. Elliott addressed the school in behalf of the trustees, saying that the trustees were standing behind the faculty and would help to build up the institution.

The prospects for the success of the school this year are excellent. Although the absence of Professor Prince handicaps the faculty to some extent, it is not expected that it will be for long, as a speedy return of the principal is expected.

DISMISSED WITH WARNING

His Youth and Unwillingness of Victim to Prosecute Save Oscar Lumpkin.

Oscar Lumpkin, a young man of nineteen, was dismissed yesterday morning from the Richmond Jail after having broken into the drug store of Dr. J. G. Crutchfield, and stolen therefrom $10. Lumpkin was with a young man named Henry Brooks at the time, and on his own admission, it was he who did the actual robbery. Lumpkin and Brooks were arrested in Washington on a charge of highway robbery, and were taken to the Richmond Jail. Lumpkin was dismissed with a warning, on the ground that he was a young man and that he was unwilling to prosecute.

HEARTS NOW BEAT AS SIX

Matrimony the Fate of Twelve of Mrs. Gill's Extortion.

Mrs. Gill's "Cupid's Special" arrived in Richmond on the return from Washington last night at 9 o'clock, the annual run having proved the usual success. Hearts that formerly beat as twelve came back last night as six, and a lot of other hearts besides came back determined that when the special makes its next return they too will throw in with the crowd. The run was more than the usual success, for while six romances reached as many happy consummations, many new ones were started among the young people who went along. Thus seats are already being reserved for next year.

BLUES LEAD IN CONTEST

Minutree Folks Talk to Rival Teams of Railroad Y. M. C. A.

Enthusiasm characterized the contest of the Blues and the Railroad Young Men's Christian Association, in which the Blues still lead. The principal event of the meeting last night was the address of Minutree Folks. Commonwealth's Attorney, which was replete with wit, counsel and encouragement. He said that the Y. M. C. A. has done more for the community than any other power, except the church, and that it stands today as one of the greatest evidences of man's humanity to man.

UNION SEMINARY OPENS SESSION

Enrollment of Students Shows Increase Over Last Year.

With the largest attendance in its history, the Union Theological Seminary yesterday entered upon its ninety-ninth consecutive session.

Opening exercises of a public nature were held in the afternoon, the feature of which was an address by Rev. Russell Cecil D. D., the subject being "The Value of Character." The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. James Y. Fair, D. D. Rev. W. W. Moore, D. D., president of the seminary, presided.

The number of students enrolled is eighty-four, as compared with sixty-nine at the corresponding period last year. Every indication seems to point to a most successful year.

Following is a list of the new students entered:

WOMEN FIGHT WAY TO GAMING TABLES

Crowds at Winchester Fair Enter Into General Merry-Making.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Winchester, Va., September 21.—

Large crowds from all sections of Shenandoah and Cumberland valleys gathered to-day at the forty-first annual exhibition of the Shenandoah Valley Agricultural Society on the Winchester Fair Grounds. The attendance for the season so far was the largest of the past twenty-five years, the crowd late this afternoon being estimated at ten thousand. With three bands playing at the same time and fakers and side show managers shouting to attract patronage, the people entered into general merrymaking, and women as well as men won and lost money rapidly at the gaming tables. At some of the games of chance women elbowed each other away in order to try their luck with the fakers. More exhibits than ever before were on hand, and practically all available space was filled. The drills of Troop C, United States Cavalry, were again notable features of the day, and many daring feats of horsemanship were executed in front of the grandstand, which was packed with people. The racing events were unusually attractive, and a large number of entries.

RUMORS UNFOUNDED

Committee of Investigation Finds No Trace of Typhoid at Forest Hill.

Rumors of an epidemic of typhoid fever at Forest Hill, a suburb of Richmond, have been found to be unfounded. A Japanese concessionaire died at the park from hemorrhage after a case of typhoid fever. Several other cases walking typhoid fever. Several cases of the disease have also been reported in Chesterfield county, but some distance from Forest Hill. There are now no cases known to exist, and no epidemic has been reported. The residents deeply resent the reports of an existing epidemic, and have appointed as a committee of investigation R. H. Smith, cashier of the Farmers National Bank; Casswell M. Carrington, of Carrington & Co.; and Augustine Royall. The committee reported through Chairman Smith last night that there was no existing case of typhoid fever at Forest Hill, and that no case has been known to originate there in the past twelve years, the only cases being those who came to Forest Hill after contracting the fever elsewhere.

Fined for Cruelty.

Felix William and Edward Stutley, colored boys, were fined $10 each in the Police Court yesterday morning on a charge of cruelly driving a horse belonging to John Biley. The horse was so badly treated that it had to be taken into the grounds of the Soldiers Home. Henry Faulkner, white, charged with stealing $5 from W. Rollison, was sentenced to fifteen days in Jail.

BALLINGER, ALSO, IN FIGHTING TRIM

Will Give People Idea of Purity of Lives of His Trauducers.

HURLS HIS DEFIANCE

Will Enjoy Turning Searchlight on Torrents of "Uplift" Patriotism.

Denver, Col., September 21.—"When I get footloose from public office I intend to devote a part of my time to giving to the American people some idea of the purity of the lives of my traducers," says Secretary of the Interior Richard A. Ballinger this afternoon at a banquet given in his honor by the Denver Chamber of Commerce and the Real Estate Exchange.

"The public is entitled to know the hidden strings of inspiration which guide in torrents of 'uplift' patriotism from these self-appointed moralists, and I shall particularly enjoy using the 'searchlight' when the proper season comes."

The secretary asserted the efficiency of the Interior Department was never greater than to-day, and continued: "I have no apologies to make to the American people for any act during my public career or in any private capacity. Standing as I do upon my conscious rectitude, I defy all my critics and all my enemies, and with the deliberate purpose of fighting out the battle to the end, I intend to administer the Interior Department within the Constitution and the law as I conceive it to be under my oath of office."

"Perhaps, unfortunately for me, but fortunately for the American people, I have been the instrument through which the efforts of certain over-zealous persons have been thwarted in an attempt to convert the public domain into a great national preserve and to destroy the opportunities of the West for the useful and just development of its resources."

"While I earnestly believe in the conservation of our natural resources, I believe in the exercise of sanity in regard to this as well as every virtue."

CHARTERS ISSUED

Charters were issued yesterday by the State Corporation Commission to the following concerns:

Wruble Tailoring Company (Inc.), Norfolk; Samuel Wruble, president, Norfolk, Va.; Louis Wruble, secretary and treasurer, Suffolk; Israel Levin, Norfolk. Capital: Maximum, $10,000; minimum, $200. Objects: Conduct an auction business; Tailoring business.

National Auction Company (Inc.), Richmond; Frank Smith, president; Walter L. Cummings, vice-president; Thomas W. Wharton, secretary and treasurer—all of Richmond. Capital: Maximum, $10,000; minimum, $200. Objects: Conduct an auction business of merchandise, etc.

An amendment was issued to the charter of the Hobbs-Newby Equipment Company (Inc.), of Norfolk, changing its name to the Hobbs-Newby Equipment Company (Inc.).

An amendment was issued to the charter of the Hanover Lumber Company (Inc.), of Richmond, changing its name to F. L. Conquest & Son (Inc.).

IN ABOLITION OF PUBLIC GROUNDS

Governor Mann gave out this written statement:

"There was a conference this evening at the Governor's office between some parties representing the planters, the Chairman of the Board of Fisheries, the Attorney-General and the Governor, in reference to conditions in James River.

"After an interchange of views, in which a spirit of conciliation was manifested, it was understood that none of the planters whose lines were in dispute would take oysters from their grounds until notified by the Commissioner of Fisheries; that those who were permitted to work would do so well inside of their lines; that the survey to settle disputed lines would be continued as rapidly as possible until its correct lines can be determined.

"It was also understood that the lines of the old Parker reservation should be rerun in connection with the Baylor Survey during this work.

"It is believed that when the lines of the Baylor Survey shall be definitely fixed and determined, there will be no further trouble. It is confidently expected that the tongs will acquiesce in this arrangement."

Different Understandings.

When seen after the meeting Mr. Cumming said that this was not altogether his understanding of the agreement. He said that the promise that the planters should not take oysters was for three days only. He also said that the Governor's statement should be supplemented to represent correctly his understanding of the results of the conference. Mr. Cumming wrote the following supplemental statement:

"We were assured at this conference of the ability of the Commonwealth's officials to determine all acute questions by the end of the week. If the decisions are not then acceptable, the planters or tongs may thereafter have the decisions of the commission passed upon in a due and orderly manner by methods prescribed by law. The planters represented by me, although not surrendering their contractual rights, but recognizing the exigencies of the moment as emphasized by the commission at this conference, sacrificed them temporarily to avoid violence and to preserve, as far as they can, the dignity of the Commonwealth."

Returns to River.

Concluding the conference, Mr. Leo, Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Cumming hurried to catch a train for Newport News. The former took the records of the Warwick survey of the James River grounds, to be used by State Surveyor Frederick Ruediger in his work of rerunning the lines in the disputed territory.

Upon their arrival at the Main Street Station they were met by State Senator George B. Kezelle, a member of the Commission of Fisheries, who had been delayed in reaching the city by a wreck. Senator Kezelle left for his home last night.

So far as the Ruediger survey is concerned, no one who spoke of the matter yesterday expressed any confidence in its results. "The planters, if they are so disposed, can move the stakes in twenty-four hours," said a well known citizen, "and the tongs, who go unpunished, can move them in twenty-four minutes."

ARMED TRUCE PREVAILS

ON JAMES RIVER BEDS

Tongers and Planters Watching Every Move

With Jealous Eye—No Outbreak Anticipated Until New Survey Is Completed.

Oysters Are Plentiful.

[Special from Staff Correspondent.]

James River Oyster Grounds, via Hampton, Va., September 21.—An armed truce prevails on the James River oyster rocks to-day. All parties are awaiting developments and watching every move made. Commissioner Lee is in Richmond conferring with the State authorities, and is expected back here to-morrow. Surveyor Frederick Ruediger, on the police yacht Blanche, with Inspector Kilby and Captain Coston, is continuing the survey to establish the true Baylor lines.

In Isle of Wight and Warwick counties.

Tongers at work on the grounds to-day are laughing at the report that troops were being held in readiness in Norfolk to enforce order on the James River rocks. They insist upon regarding the mention of troops as a joke.

The tongs held an important meeting last night, when the best of order was maintained. The main object was to appoint a committee from the tongs to work with State Surveyor Ruediger in running his lines, and see that the tongs set fair play in the re-survey. Captain Joseph T. T. J. S. Brown and W. T. Carter were appointed as the committee. Captains Carter and T. J. S. Brown aided in running the lines in the original Baylor survey.

The tongs make no secret of the fact that they are armed and ready to defend their rights, but as a matter of fact they are too busy even to hold mass-meetings. The enormous strike of oysters on the James River grounds, far exceeding expectations, probably accounts for this willingness to accede to Commissioner Lee's proposals. Had they not been so busy making money trouble would have been inevitable. Among the inspectors the opinion prevails that the trouble originated in the fact that the tongs have no occupation during the closed season. Throughout the summer, when rigid police regulations forbid the taking of oysters from the public rocks, and when the only oysters on the market are those from private grounds, the tongs drift about in idleness and talk of their grievances.

With the opening of the season on September 15 there came a change in the tide, and the stake-pulling episode, which was an act of sheer lawlessness. Since then they have been too busy tugging from the public rocks even to stir up a row.

Hampton packers, whose buying boats lie close to the rocks, buying the tongs' boatloads for cash just as the oysters come from the beds, are more and more indignant over the failure of the commissioner to protect the property of the tongs. The tongs have leased them, and for which they are paying an annual rental. They assert that the tongs have put themselves entirely out of court by their stake-pulling, and their threats of attack on the police boats, and point to the clause in the law which provides that if any ten citizens believe the lines are improperly drawn they may petition the Board of Fisheries for a re-survey. No such petition was received by Commissioner Lee. The stake-pulling came as a bolt out of a clear sky on the opening day of the season, no formal complaint having been filed with any one.

M. C. Armstrong, of Hampton, went to Richmond to-day to consult Governor Mann.

It becomes more and more evident that the issue is squarely joined between the tongs and the packers. The tongs are a class, and with but few exceptions, are poor men with little education, and with the poor man's view that every man's hand is against him. The average tonger owns nothing save his boat, his oyster tongs and possibly his cabin on shore. Many of those tonging in the James are from the York River, where the strike has been poor this year, and these men live on their boats. They pay a small annual license fee to the State for the right to take oysters from any public rocks in Virginia during the open season. There is probably a much larger proportion of negroes among the tongs of the James River rocks than is the case on the York, Rappahannock or Potomac beds.

Large Capital Invested.

The planters of this section whose headquarters are chiefly at Hampton, where there are several large canning and oyster packing houses, represent a different type. They are either partnerships or corporations, with large invested capital, buying the oysters from the tongs and replanting them in private waters where they are fattened for the market. Several of the large planters also run packing houses and have extensive contracts for shipping oysters to all parts of the country. Among them are to be found shrewd business men ready to take advantage of every legitimate opportunity. Out here on the rocks the tongs seem to regard the large planting as an extension of their natural enemies, although it is to them that they owe their daily crops. The present trouble is over the claim of the tongs that the planters have moved the stakes of their private beds, leased from the State, far out over public rocks, and to the extent that they infringe on the "rights" of the tongs who have for so long grappled for oysters on these public rocks, that they have come to regard them as their own property, and resent any interference even to the maintenance by the State of a closed season.

Among planters there is a general feeling that it would be wise to break the Baylor survey, and to throw open for lease by the State at a profitable rate some of the natural oyster beds, which are now public property and liable to be worked over by any tonger who has paid his State license. The tongs, on the other hand, want the area of public oyster ground increased rather than diminished. At some of the more excited mass-meetings of the tongs, as at Battery Park harbor on Monday night, speakers have advocated a reign of anarchy, a general crusade to pull up the stakes of all private planters, and a free for all grappling for oysters even on what are now planted and leased grounds.

Many Breed Relics of Terror.

Such a course could only breed a reign of terror, for the planters are determined to defend their property and have notified the authorities that they will do so, and that any further stake pulling or any attempt to take oysters from private grounds, will be answered by shotguns.

All parties here agree that a war between the tongs and the planters is imminent, and the fact of Commissioner Lee's promptly ordering a re-survey have prevented an open outbreak.

Trouble Only in One Section.

Unfavorable comment has been aroused over the fact that in recent years most of the trouble has been in the James River, while as a matter of fact the Rappahannock River beds and the Potomac Sound beds are larger and have a greater annual yield. There has been practically no trouble there, however, and a large part of the annual State appropriation for policing the oyster grounds is being spent in the James River.

Unless there are unexpected developments the truce will last until the completion of the survey. If the tongs in no way meet the rocks they claim as public, there may be serious trouble on the river. If, on the other hand, the new survey shows that the planters are encroaching, there may be appeals to the courts for relief, as the planters will undoubtedly make any effort to oust them from the grounds they now occupy.
